Ross Knox House in Mobile listed in the National Register of Historic Places

The Ross Knox House in Mobile was listed in the National Register of Historic Places on December 30, 2008.

The house with its steeply pitched gables, prominent chimney, half-timbering and casement windows is one of the best examples of the Tudor Revival style in Mobile. It is located in Country Club Estates, a 1920s upper-class suburb that features a golf course and a country club. The house was designed by Mobile architect John Platt Roberts, and constructed in 1929. Ross Knox, the president of the Lucas E. Moore Stave Company of Georgia, a cooperage and supply company, bought the house in 1933 and sold it in 1942. The house was purchased by Judge Herndon Inge, Jr. in 1959, who resided there for 43 years.

The National Register of Historic Places is the nation's official list of cultural resources worthy of preservation.

The Alabama Historical Commission is the official state agency responsible for preserving, protecting, and interpreting Alabama's historic places.

To protect, preserve, and interpret Alabama's historic places is the mission of the Alabama Historical Commission, Alabama's state agency for historic preservation.
